(From the New York Daily Tribune.)

There is no better musical critic in this country than John S. Dwight, of Boston, and few men are able to express what they have to say about music in a manner at once so poetic and precise. His articles are sure to please the learned in music, and to delight its lovers. We commend his journal unreservedly to our musical friends as a work which will be an able running commentary upon musical events, extracting from each its significance, varying its critical notices of music and musicians, both new and old, with biographical and entertaining details; and always true to what is most interesting and commanding in this noblest of the Arts.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY!

PHOTOGRAPHIC OIL PAINTINGS
ON CANVASS.

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE JUST PATENTED their new process for taking Photographic Impressions on Canvas, and are now prepared to take them in this city. The correctness of delineation and beauty of these paintings, which are produced with two short sittings, and a trifling expense, can only be fully appreciated by examination. Faithful life-size portraits made by this process from daguerotypes of deceased persons. Our other various styles of colored Parisian Photographs, taken as usual, and at no other establishment in America.

J. GURNEY & C. D. FREDERICKS, No. 46 Rue Basse du Rempart, Paris, and No. 849 Broadway, New York. j8

PHOTOGRAPHS.

THE UNDERSIGNED INVITES ATTENTION TO the specimens of this Art exhibited at his Gallery, No. 209 BROADWAY. Heretofore the French have been regarded as the only successful practitioners of this beautiful novelty in Art; an examination, however, of the results exhibited at his establishment will convince the Public that the acknowledged superiority of American Daguerreotypes extends also to the kindred Art of Photography.

Any desired size, from life to small miniatures, taken perfectly without re-touching. They are susceptible of coloring, and thus supply the place of Oil Portraits or miniatures. Copying carefully executed by this process. Large copies produced from small originals. Daguerreotypes from Life, Old Pictures, Paintings, and Statuary, as usual.

PROSPECTUS OF VOLUME III.

It is with pleasure that the Publishers of the CRAYON announce the Prospectus of another Volume, and the consequent permanence of the Journal. The difficulties encountered in the past year have been very great, both in respect to contributions and subscriptions; but they have been so far successfully met, that the prospects of the future are as bright as the Publishers had a right to hope for.

The course of the CRAYON will be the same as that which it has followed from the beginning, earnest and sympathetic in criticism, and comprehensive in its discussion of principles. In notices of works of Art, it will be the aim of its Editors to call public attention to unrecognized and rising talent, as well as to draw instruction from works of established reputation, and to educate the taste of its readers to the point where they may for themselves judge intelligently, and with reference to general principles.

There will be more attention paid to practical matters in the coming year than it has been possible for the Editors to give heretofore, and by the accession of new names to its list of contributors, it is hoped that more material of a generally entertaining character, yet strictly in keeping with the tone of the Journal, will be given.

In order to enable the Editors more fully to accomplish these purposes, they have concluded to make certain changes in the conduct of the CRAYON, the most important of which, and made in accordance with the suggestions of those interested in it, will be its publication as a Monthly. It is believed that such a form would be universally more acceptable. The CRAYON will therefore be published as a Monthly of 32 pp., of the same size page as at present.

The Editors are perfectly assured that these changes will enable them to increase the value of the CRAYON very greatly in every respect. At present, they can promise confidently nothing in the way of illustration, though they hope to be able to furnish occasionally some such attraction of a thoroughly artistic character.

With the opening of the new Volume will commence the long-promised discussion of the Nature and Influence of Beauty, hitherto delayed by the press of labor in other directions. There will be also a certain space given to Architectural notices, and a thorough examination of the Artistic wealth of the Nation. The foreign, as well as domestic Correspondence, will also be more extensive than before.

The CRAYON will be published upon the same terms as heretofore, namely, THREE DOLLARS PER ANNUM, payable in advance.

THE FOLLOWING INDUCEMENTS to obtain Subscribers are offered to students of Art, and others interested in diffusing a knowledge of Art:
